Americans Launch Double Blow At Germany

THE greater part of the southern sector of the Western Front was aflame last night as the American 1st and 3rd Armies smashed forward in attacks which Berlin described as "assuming the features of a grand scale battle."

Following a new break-through by General Hodges' Army north of Aachen, General Patton's infantry and armour attacked on a 20-mile front between Metz and Nancy at dawn yesterday, and by evening had driven a six-mile deep "wedge" into the German lines and captured eight towns in their advance.

Almost simultaneously, the 1st Army launched a new offensive east of Aachen in a north-westerly direction, aimed at linking up with the American column which has broken through the Siegfried defences between Geilenkirchen and Merkstein.

New York Radio said last night that United States troops had broken into Aachen, and that house fighting had begun on the edge of the town.

(Reuter, A.P. and P.A.)

General Hodges' 1st United States Army launched a new assault east of Aachen at dawn yesterday in a north-westerly direction to link up with American troops who already hold a bridgehead through the Siegfried Line between Merkstein and Geilenkirchen.

Already the gap between the two pincer arms on Aachen has been closed to four miles, and the German garrison of 1,500 S.S. troops inside Aachen itself is almost sealed off.

The American troops yesterday afternoon captured 800-foot-high Crucifix Hill, four miles north-east of Aachen, after taking the small, but important, village of Verlautenheide, three miles north-east of Aachen. This was captured after a fighting advance of one mile in four hours.

These American troops, after breaking through the Siegfried Line, continued to drive on, and reached Strab, 5½ miles from Aachen. Three other small towns also were taken. They are meeting stiff resistance in difficult terrain.

American artillery hurled in a smothering barrage as a prelude to the general advance, but, in spite of this, the Germans were taken by surprise when the assault went in.

American infantry now have almost encircled Aachen, except for the gap due north of the town, which is completely covered by 1st Army guns in commanding positions.

Crucifix Hill commands a great area north of Aachen. It is the highest point for many miles in the ridge of hills which is the guiding line for the Siegfried Line switch sweeping round north of Aachen.

While the infantry was thrusting towards Crucifix Hill, American armour was holding half of Stolberg.

While General Hodges' troops closed around Aachen, others continued to drive through the Hurtgen Forest in the direction of Duren, and were about seven miles in a direct line from this town.

SIX-MILE ADVANCE

Infantry and armour of General Patton's United States 3rd Army, which yesterday launched an offensive on a 20-mile front between Nancy and Metz, advanced six miles at some points, and cleared the Germans from eight towns.

The captured towns are:—Arraye-et-Han, 24 miles north-east of Nancy, and Moivron, Jean Delincourt and Serrieres, in the same area; Clemerey, 18 miles due north of Nancy; Fossieux, 35 miles south-east of Metz; Ajoncourt, five miles north-east of Nancy, and Lixieres.

The Americans had only light opposition to overcome to capture these places, as well as several strategically important stretches of high ground.

The general arc of the offensive is some 15 miles north and north-east of Nancy.

The United States 12th Army Corps, under Major-General Manton S. Eddy, is responsible for yesterday's advance between Nancy and Metz, it was officially announced last night.

The causeway linking Walcheren with the Dutch mainland was under Canadian control last night, and the island was virtually isolated after a two-mile advance by General Crerar's men from the village of Hoogerheide, north-west of Antwerp.

Fires have been seen on the Dutch islands north of Walcheren, which may be an indication that the Germans are abandoning them.

British and Polish troops closing in on the important Dutch communications centre of Tilburg are beating back a series of counter-attacks with heavy German losses.

Other Canadian troops are fighting a minor "Arnhem" in the Scheldt "pocket." Pressed back towards the Leopold canal under raking fire from German artillery, mortars and machine-guns, their bridgehead has shrunk a little further in bitter fighting.

They now hold a three-mile long narrow strip along the canal's northern banks, with some gaps between units. Reinforcements have been getting across, but the original spans across the canal are under heavy mortar fire. The position of the bridgehead is approaching a critical stage.

GRIM STRUGGLE

Field-Marshal Model, Commander of the German Army Group facing General Montgomery's armies, now has nine full strength infantry divisions and five panzer divisions locked in the battle of Holland.

These figures, representing an estimated strength of some 150,000 men, were disclosed last night. They demonstrate that a grim autumn struggle lies before the British and Canadian Armies, says Reuter's Special Correspondent at 21st Army Group H.Q.

The Americans have brought up two fresh tank divisions in the area north of Aachen, where attacks have now assumed the character of a major assault, German Radio said last night.

The last 48 hours' fighting on the western front has left no doubt that the American forces in the Aachen area intend to join battle for the final decision, said the German News Agency.

A war reporter on the German radio said last night:—"Never before has the war, now at its climax, so clearly demonstrated the united strength which the enemy appliance facing Germany is ruthlessly hurled against the fortress Germany."

Abbey Theatre Directors Called on to Resign

A MOTION expressing "no confidence" in the Abbey Theatre Directors, and calling for their resignation, was carried by 59 votes for 15, at a meeting held last night under the auspices of the Playgoers' Circle of the New Theatre Group, at the Broadway Soda Fountain, Dublin.

Mr. Liam Redmond said that the salaries in the Abbey Theatre were deplorably low. The highest was £7 3s. per week, but only half when rehearsing. The theatre had passed out of the hands of men of genius into those of men of purely academic outlook and incapable of judging the difference between good and bad playing. The Gaelic revival policy of the Abbey, he said, had caused trouble. He believed completely in the Gaelic revival of the Abbey, but he was not in agreement with the pursuance of the present policy. Nobody who did not know Irish would get into the Abbey at the moment. That was doing injury to the English theatre in such, because it limited the genius of the actor. He was completely in favour of using the theatre for the revival of Irish, but he would be sorry to see the great tradition and the great theatre destroyed because of this policy of employing only Gaelic actors. The State, he said, had a certain duty in the matter, because the people were contributing £1,000 per year, which should not be used unless the people were satisfied that it was being spent in the best possible manner. The directorate had no real claim to be called the successors of Yeats, Synge, and Lady Gregory.

Mr. S. Finn said that there was too much emphasis laid on the Gaelicisation of the Abbey Theatre. There never had been a suggestion of drama in Irish before 1901.

Mr. S. Heavey said that no matter how bad the Abbey was at the moment if it were ever taken over by the Government it would be worse.

Mr. H. Webster, who proposed the motion, contended that there was absolutely no leadership in the Abbey, and the only director who knew anything about the theatre was outvoted. This year three plays were produced that never should have been seen on the boards of any theatre, particularly the Abbey.

Mr. M. Clarke said that the Gaelic policy of the Abbey had failed, and, instead of giving encouragement to the fostering of an Irish theatre, they were antagonising the public, who did not want mediocrity in Irish.

Mr. F. Robbins dissociated himself from the resolution, and said that such criticism would destroy the Abbey. He suggested that the Abbey players should be asked to appoint a deputation to see the Directors.

Madame Kirkwood Hackett said that the Abbey was not able to pay good salaries.

Mr. Seamus O'Healy agreed that Irish drama had no tradition, but the Abbey had no tradition when founded.

Mr. Webster said that a year ago the Abbey could have paid increased salaries because of its high profits, which had been squandered by mismanagement. On some weeks the Abbey had made a profit of well over £100 per week. The Government was going to devote £80,000 after the war to the building of a national theatre, and were they going to let the present management squander that money?

Miss E. Dunne said that when Fred Higgins, one of the directors, died the atmosphere changed entirely, and it became a business of whether we knew Irish or not.

Dr. O. Sheehy-Skeffington, who presided, said the directors of the theatre had been invited to attend, and replied expressing their regret for their inability to do so. Mr. Lennox Robinson, who had agreed to come, found at the last moment th... he could not attend.

Road to Bologna Shelled

THE Rimini-Bologna highway is now under Allied shell fire about 14 miles south-east of Bologna, states Reuter's special correspondent at Allied Italian H.Q. American troops of the Fifth Army, fighting their way down a mountain track, have driven to within ten miles of the highway in the area of Poggio Del Falchetto, in the Sillaro Valley. The advance was made in deep mud, driving rain and clinging mountain mists.

Allied artillery is now ranged on the vital German supply route ten miles beyond. German resistance all along the 20-mile Allied assault arc remains extremely stubborn, and Bologna is still 12 miles from the most advanced positions. The arc, which runs about two miles north of Loiano, on the Florence-Bologna road, has been extended by the capture of Guilietti and a drive on to the southern slopes of Monte Casteliazi, three miles to the west.

Social Insurance Minister

Sir William Jowitt, British Minister without Portfolio, has been appointed Minister of Social Insurance (Designate), it was announced last night in London. Viscount Swinton is to be Minister for Civil Aviation.

Sir William is regarded as an ideal "pilot" for the Social Insurance Bill, but his preliminary work may be ended by a Labour split from the coalition at the general election. He is Labour M.P. for Ashton-under-Lyne, and unless there is a new coalition Government or a Labour majority his work at the new Ministry will have to be handed over to another Social Insurance Minister.

New Archdeacon Of Kildare

The Rev. Cecil Ross Kitching, M.A., has been appointed Archdeacon of Kildare, in succession to the Rev. G. W. Peacocke, M.A., who has retired.

The new archdeacon, who graduated from Cambridge, was ordained deacon in 1907.

His first appointment was to the curacy of St. Mary's, Athlone, where he remained for three years. Subsequently he held several curacies in Dublin parishes, until in 1921 he was appointed Rector of Geashill, Co. Offaly, and Prebendary of Kildare Cathedral. In 1940 he became Treasurer of Kildare Cathedral and in 1942 he was appointed Chancellor.

"Sea Monster" May Be A Basking Shark

The "sea monster" of Machrihanish, near Campbeltown, Argyllshire, which has attracted visitors even by air, is believed to be only a basking shark. Dr. A. C. Stephen, Edinburgh, keeper of the Natural History Department of the Royal Scottish Museum, gave this opinion yesterday.

DEATH OF WENDELL WILLKIE

MR. WENDELL WILLKIE, Republican candidate for the Presidency in the 1940 U.S. Presidential election, died in hospital in New York at 2.20 a.m. yesterday.

He had been in hospital since September 7th. His wife was at his bedside when he died.

The announcement of his death from coronary thrombosis was made by his secretary, Mr. Lamoyne Jones. Mr. Willkie was 52.

Wendell Lewis Willkie, states Reuter, was, after President Roosevelt, the American politician best known outside the U.S.

He leapt into the limelight in the Presidential elections four years ago, when his selection as Republican candidate came as a big surprise. Before 1940 he had never taken any part in party politics, and was regarded with some suspicion by the "party bosses."

He was born at Elwood, Indiana, where his father had made a modest fortune, and lost it in the crash of 1893, so that the son had to work his way through Indiana University. He became a lawyer, fought in the 1914-1918 war as a captain in the American Field Artillery in France, and returned to practise in Akron, Ohio.

In the 1940 Presidential election Mr. Willkie received the largest number of votes ever polled by a Republican candidate. The final figures in the popular vote were: Mr. Roosevelt, 27,241,939; Mr. Willkie, 22,327,226. Mr. Willkie arrived in London on a ten-day visit on January 26th, 1941, to see how the people of the capital were standing up to the Blitz. Before leaving London he had tea with King George and Queen Elizabeth.

VISIT TO DUBLIN

On February 5th he flew from Manchester to Dublin, where he was greeted at the airport by Mr. Frank Aiken, to whom he said:—"I am very happy to be in Ireland, the land to which so many millions of Americans look to as the land of their forefathers, and I am looking forward to meeting your Prime Minister." Subsequently, Mr. Willkie had lunch and a long conversation with Mr. de Valera.

In September, 1942, he set out on a 31,000-mile world tour, during which he was received by Marshal Stalin and by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek. He visited battle areas in Russia and China.

In October last Mr. Willkie began campaigning for the Republican Party's nomination in the Presidential election of this year, and entered the Wisconsin primary elections in April to test public opinion. He was defeated, however, and withdrew his candidature.

President Roosevelt yesterday paid this tribute to Mr. Wendell Willkie:—

"The nation will long remember Wendell Willkie as a forthright American. Earnest, honest, wholesouled, he also had a tremendous courage. This courage, which was his dominant trait, prompted him more than once to stand alone and challenge the wisdom of counsels taken by powerful interests within his own party. In this hour of grave crisis, the country loses a great citizen through his untimely passing."

Mr. Cordell Hull, U.S. Secretary of State, in a telegram yesterday to Mrs. Wendell Willkie, said:—

"It is most shocking to me to learn of the untimely passing of your husband, Wendell Willkie. His death brings a definite loss to the nation."

Governor Thomas E. Dewey, of New York, Republican nominee for President, has paid the following tribute to Mr. Willkie:—

"Wendell Willkie was one of the great men of our time. His death will be mourned throughout the world."

Mr. Wendell Willkie, whose death is reported, visited Dublin early in 1941. He is shown alighting from a plane.

£6,000 Short-wave Station "Failure"

Radio Eireann's £6,000 short-wave station, experimented with since the emergency began, and intended for transmitting programmes to the United States, is stated by an official of the Writers, Actors, Artists and Musicians' Association to have been a failure. The official told an Irish Times reporter that it is seldom heard beyond Galway.

While Dr. Kiernan was director of Radio Eireann it is stated that he submitted to the Department of Finance a scheme for the erection of a powerful short-wave station. It was rejected. In order to state Ireland's case during the emergency the Government felt the necessity for such a station. It was found that its erection would cost ten times the pre-war figure. Afterwards efforts were made to buy a short-wave station, but one could not be procured.

Then the £6,000 station was erected on an amateur basis, according to W.A.A.M.A., but it was a failure. It was still in operation, sending out news on the 19 metre band.

W.A.A.M.A. is asking why the revival of native variety shows, evident in Dublin since the emergency, is not reflected on the radio. An official said that the public would, perhaps, like to hear the following occasionally:—Noel Purcell, Jimmy O'Dea, Eddie Byrne, Harry Bailey, May Devitt, Cathleen Delaney, Maureen Delany, Robert Hennessy, Leo McCabe, Eire O'Reilly, Cecil Sheridan.

Party Affiliation—The Common Wealth Party yesterday decided at a private conference to approach the British Labour Party to discuss affiliation.

Potato Crop Hit By Disease

The partial failure of the potato crop in several areas in East Cavan and on the border of North Meath is causing grave concern in the affected areas. Upwards of fifty per cent. of the crop, it is stated, is affected by a partial blackness, which is generally spoken of as "a dry rot." In some districts only the earlier varieties are affected. Some farmers attribute the disease to blight; others say that it is due to the rainfall of the late summer and early autumn, while others attribute the failure to the application of too much farmyard manure. They state that it is almost impossible to boil the potatoes.

Fears are also entertained of a shortage of seed in the coming spring.

Call For Better Allowances For "T.B." Patients' Families

THE Department of Local Government and Public Health still is silent on the question of providing special allowances for the dependants of breadwinners stricken with tuberculosis, writes an "Irish Times" reporter.

When investigating the differences between Eire and Northern Ireland grants two weeks ago the reporter called to the Department's head offices at Dublin Customs House. After fifteen minutes' delay—involving consultation by officials with the heads of the Department—he was told: "We cannot give any information."

The Northern Ireland Government supplied pamphlets and typewritten documents outlining its new scheme immediately it had been requested to do so.

Following his call to the Department, the reporter learned from an authoritative source that arrangements for the payment of higher home assistance allowances to dependants was likely. Information was to have been sought from local assistance authorities, but apparently nothing has been done so far.

DOCTORS' VIEWS

Meanwhile, doctors at sanatoria, social workers and Labour leaders are calling for the immediate introduction of a scheme of allowances comparable with those given in England and Northern Ireland.

During the week-end the reporter was in touch with seven prominent doctors. Owing to their connection with the Local Government Department, they requested that their names be not published; but all agreed that the introduction of a compensation scheme was necessary for the quick recovery of the patients and the protection of his family.

NORTHERN SCHEME

This is the attitude of the Red Cross Anti-Tuberculosis Section:—

"The Six-County Government scheme does not include all cases, but it is the nucleus from which advances can be made, and is one which might well be copied elsewhere."

The idea of the scheme is this: When a working man with a large family is discovered suffering from early tuberculosis it is possible for him to take treatment in a sanatorium and have his dependants cared for by the State. The allowances are sufficient to encourage patients to enter sanatoria, and still have their families supported in reasonable comfort. Additional allowances are made for rent and fuel, while deductions are made for other money received by the family.

"The Red Cross regards the scheme as a promising one, as it makes the path easy for the early patient who has a family to support. It also minimises the possibility of spread of the disease among the contacts at home, and emphasises the fact that social and nutritional factors play an even greater part in the prevention of tuberculosis than does the actual treatment of the disease. Money is being spent wisely in order to save money.

"This is the start of what should become a fine scheme. We hope that in its fuller form we shall see more of it."

CRYING NEED

Mr. James Larkin, T.D., said:—"As stated in the Irish Times, there is a sharp contrast between the maintenance rates here and in Northern Ireland. There is a crying need for legislation in this respect. The anti-tuberculosis campaign of the Red Cross does not appear to be making headway, or to have the drive required to bring about the rapid change required to cope with the problem. There is a wide opinion developing that the problem should not be left to voluntary organisation. The Government should take the financial and other responsibilities, and work in conjunction with all interested bodies. Then there is the problem of increasing the number of beds in the sanatoria."

Miss Louie Bennett, Secretary of the Irish Women Workers' Union, says that the food allowances to tuberculosis sufferers in Dublin are totally inadequate. Stressing the need for special accommodation for people awaiting admission to sanatoria, Miss Bennett instanced the case of a father and mother, both suffering from the disease, who were living with six children in a three-roomed Dublin house.

LONG-TERM PLAN

In its long-term plan for the prevention of tuberculosis, just published, the Anti-Tuberculosis Section of the Red Cross, stressing the need for improved housing conditions, with slum abolition and improved workshops and factory conditions, says: "Improved housing without increased income to meet increased needs for food, rest and transport, may so reduce the standard of living that the population will be in a worse position with regard to the danger of tuberculosis infection. In our towns, large families of the labouring class are always on the verge of nutritional deficiency, particularly in times of unemployment, and no improvement of housing will compensate for a diminished food supply."

In a recent article the Irish Times pointed out that under a new scheme the allowances to a dependent wife and five children of a tuberculosis patient in Northern Ireland, including grants for rent and fuel, would be approximately £4, plus discretionary allowances for insurance premiums, hire purchase and educational fees. In Eire the maximum allowances for a similar family would be £2 1s. 6d.—home assistance allowance £1 7s., children's allowances 7s. 6d., and food vouchers approximately 7s.

EGYPTIAN CABINET DISMISSED

KING FAROUK has dismissed the Egyptian Cabinet under Nahas Pasha, it was announced yesterday in Cairo, where the news was made known by official radio announcements in Arabic, English and French.

King Farouk has called on Armed Maher Pasha to form a new Cabinet. This will be a coalition, states Reuter.

A league of independent Arab countries is to be established to foster co-operation between them and to safeguard their independence and integrity against all aggression. This decision, made by the preparatory committee to the general Arab Congress, and announced on Saturday night, is embodied in a protocol signed at the Farouk University, in Alexandria, by representatives of the five countries forming the committee—Egypt, Iraq, Syria, Lebanon and Transjordan. The protocol also upholds the rights of the Arabs in Palestine and the British policy of stopping Jewish immigration into the country, and confirms the independence of Lebanon within its present frontiers.

The Arab League, the Protocol States, will be governed by a council, to be known as "The Council of the League of the Arab States."

The heads of two of the delegations made these statements to a Reuter correspondent: — Riad El Solh, the Lebanese Premier—"The Arab nations now hold an international position which cannot be ignored by other nations." Tewfik Abul Hudah, Premier of Transjordan—"Any harm done to Palestine will be interpreted as a hostile act towards ourselves. We know that the Jews not only covet Palestine, but also other countries rich in minerals such as ours. There is not a single Jew in Transjordan, and by Ministerial decree no foreigner will be allowed to acquire land."—(Reuter and A.P.)

Aga Khan To Marry Again

The Aga Khan is to marry Mlle. Yvette Blanche Labrousse at Geneva this morning, says a Reuter telegram from Zurich. The religious ceremony has already taken place.

This will be the third marriage of the Aga Khan, who is 67. His new bride, a Frenchwoman, is 38. She won the title of "Miss France" in 1930.

Bequest Leads to Special Bill

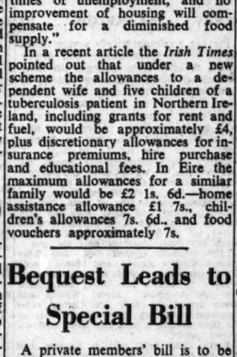
A private members' bill is to be introduced in the Dail shortly, to give effect to one of the bequests in the will of the late Mr. Daniel McGrath, Dublin tea merchant, who left more than £40,000 of his estate for the benefit of the people of Bagenalstown, Co. Carlow.

The bill asks the Oireachtas to extinguish certain rights of way in the Dunleckny Manor estate, Bagenalstown, where it is proposed to build a £6,000-sports field for the townspeople.

Mr. McGrath, a bachelor, left his fortune to provide £25 marriage dowries for deserving Catholic girls of Bagenalstown; for a town hall; the sports field and other amenities. Twenty-four marriage dowries already have been granted; plans for the town hall are complete; but difficulties have been encountered over the sports field. Mr. Justice Gavan Duffy, in the High Court, refused the trustees of the bequest permission to buy a site on the Manor estate, as there was a right of way across the field which had been chosen. Under an Order of Court, however, liberty was given to the trustees to promote a bill "for the closing and extinguishment of the said right of way."

The bill, the Irish Times learned, now has passed through the examination stage.

New Circuit Judge



Mr. Fionan Lynch made the declaration required by the Constitution on his appointment as a Judge of the Circuit Court before the Chief Justice in the Supreme Court last Saturday.

Members of Judge Lynch's family and some of his colleagues at the Bar were among those who were present. The declaration was made in the Irish language.

RED ARMY SWEEPS FORWARD IN NORTH AND SOUTH

SOVIET forces are advancing rapidly north and south. Moscow last night reported a new break-through, north of East Prussia, in the direction of the Baltic ports of Libau and Memel. Reuter messages state that the Red Army is already in the heart of Hungary.

After a rapid advance of 60 miles from the Transylvanian border in 48 hours, the Red Army is now in the heart of Hungary and only 80 miles from Budapest, Reuter cables. Soviet tanks are moving westwards across the great plain with almost no natural defence lines to stop them.

The Red Army has crossed to the north bank of the Koros river—somewhere east of its bend, 70 miles from Budapest — and Soviet vanguards are threatening the Budapest-Debreczen railway, 30 miles north of the Koros.

Berlin reports also said that the Red Army has thrust 400,000 men into an offensive across the Carpathians in a drive south into Slovakia and Hungary, and that Soviet forces in North-East Yugo-Slavia have established two bridgeheads across the Danube, about 30 miles north of Belgrade.

POSITION "TENSE"

Colonel von Hammer, German News Agency military commentator, said last night that the position on the east front was "tense, particularly north and east of Belgrade."

Yugo-Slav radio said yesterday: "The battle for Belgrade has begun. The rail line to Zagreb has been cut and the Germans in Belgrade are isolated. Soviet forces and Yugo-Slav units are surrounding the city."

Colonel Stalin, the Marshal's son, was named in yesterday's Order of the Day, which said that N.W. and S.W. of Shavli Soviet forces broke through strongly fortified defences and advanced up to 62 miles, widening their breach up to 175 miles in the direction of Libau and Memel. "More than 2,000 places were captured."

The battle for Riga is still far from conclusion, but the Russians have practically cut off the port, and have captured the last main points north-east of the city, states Reuter.

A Berlin message says that the German defence has fallen back to a narrow defence belt round Riga.

DRIVE IN FINLAND

Four Russian divisions, with powerful air support, on Saturday launched a major attack on the German security lines on the northern Finnish front of the Rybachi Peninsula (Fisherman Peninsula), said the German News Agency last night. The same source also stated that Finnish detachments attacked German rearguards moving towards the north of Finland. "We suffered casualties in dead and prisoners," said the report.

The Helsinki correspondent of the Swedish News Agency reported last night, says Reuter, that Finnish troops have taken the town of Kemi, near the northern shores of the Gulf of Bothnia.

Russia Does Not Favour Disarmament

"PRAVDA," in its weekly review quoted by Moscow radio, takes exception to articles in the Turkish newspaper "Vatan" by the Turkish journalist, Yalman, who advocates not only the disarmament of Germany, but general disarmament of all countries. "He does not realise that his methods would only sow the seeds of another war," said "Pravda."—(Reuter.)

Germans Abandon Corinth

THE Germans have abandoned Corinth, and nearly the whole of Greek Peloponnesus now appears to be in Allied hands, states Reuter, as the troops of the "land forces, Adriatic," close in at the head of the gulf which separates the isthmus from the Greek mainland. The surrender of the seaport of Nauplion, 30 miles south of the isthmus, was reported last night.

Germans withdrawing towards Salonika are being attacked by Greek guerrillas and Allied divebombers.

Reuter's Military Correspondent in Cairo states that military developments have practically sealed all retreat routes from the German-held Ægean Islands. Warships are systematically patrolling the waters surrounding the islands, and Allied planes are watching for any evacuation by air.

The Germans have blocked the Corinth Canal between the Greek mainland and Peloponnesus by blowing two bridges and sinking a block ship.

An official statement accompanying yesterday's land communique on the operations in Greece said, according to Reuter:—"Since its official birthday four months ago, Land Forces, Adriatic, has successfully played the rôle of a baby Hercules strangling snakes. Small, compared with the huge armies fighting elsewhere, the force has, nevertheless, harried the enemy on a front about as long—measured from the Baltic to the Black Sea—as the Russian."—(Reuter and A.P.)

Roscrea Meat Factory Closed

ROSCREA Meat Products factory, which was opened in 1935 by the Minister for Agriculture, Dr. J. Ryan, closed down last Saturday. Upwards of 400 employees have been thrown idle by the decision. The cessation of work was expected for some days.

Some months ago the factory was placed in a hazardous position when the supply of water leading from Neilstown reservoir was cut off. Approximately £1,200 was paid in wages weekly.

Motor Racing Cyclist Killed

Percy Barlow, Tamlaght, Enniskillen, a well-known motor racing cyclist, has died in Fermanagh County Hospital from injuries which he received when the motor cycle which he was riding collided with a lorry near his home. A pillion passenger, Gordon Ramsey, also of Tamlaght, received severe injuries and is detained in hospital.

New Record For Remittances

Totalling £12,589,000, emigrants' remittances to Eire during 1943 established a record, being £4,210,000 more than the total for 1942. Of the new record-breaking figure, £10,950,000 came from the United Kingdom, which is an increase of £4,150,000 on the corresponding figure for 1942. In 1939 emigrants remitted a total of £2,826,000, of which £600,000 came from the United Kingdom.

The figures, which are contained in the current issue of the Irish Trade Journal, are given in a survey of the balances of international payments at the end of 1943, compared with 1939.

Our investments abroad and extern profits yielded an income of £11,800,000, whilst £7,600,000 was paid out of this country in respect of external investments here. The total value of exports in 1943 was £36,258,000, as compared with £51,511,000 in 1939. Pensions income totalled £2,981,000, of which £1,165,000 came through the British Ministry of Pensions.

EXTENSIVE FLOODING FOLLOWS HEAVY BOMBING

ON Saturday 3,000 Allied bombers from Britain and Italy attacked Germany in the greatest co-ordinated air offensive of the war. According to the Press Association, more than 1,000 fighters escorted the bombers.

Flying Fortresses and Liberators from Britain attacked oil plants and chemical works, while R.A.F. Lancasters struck at communication centres and attacked the Dutch island of Walcheren. From Italy more than 800 bombers struck at oil targets in the Vienna area.

The American forces from Britain destroyed 33 German fighters in combat and 16 more on the ground. Fifty-one 8th Air Force bombers and 15 fighters are missing.

The British Air Ministry communiqué yesterday stated that Emmerich and Cleve, advanced bases in Western Germany were heavily attacked, and a great weight of bombs dropped on German supplies and railway communications. At the same time, the dykes at Flushing, on the island of Walcheren, were breached in several places.

A Reuter telegram from Basle yesterday said that the power station on the Kembs dam, on the Rhine, on which U.S. bombers were, on Saturday, reported to have scored a direct hit, has been completely destroyed. The river level has now fallen seven feet.

The Kembs dam in Upper Alsace, eight miles from the Swiss border, holds up the water in the Rhone-Rhine Canal. It has a drop of 50 feet, and produces 31,000 kilowatts. The Rhone-Rhine Canal, the level of which is likely to be affected, is of importance to the German forces defending the Belfort Gap.

Swiss Radio stated last night that as a result of the bombing of the Kemps Dam the harbour alarm had to be sounded in the Swiss section of the Rhine. Harbour personnel succeeded in transferring 24 ships, but 19 others ran aground. "It is not yet certain whether navigation on the Rhine will be possible," the Radio added.

DYKE BREACHED

There are eight separate breaches in the Flushing dyke, which kept out the sea from the south of the island of Walcheren, the Press Association states. The breaches are on either side of Flushing, both to the east and to the west of the port. By five o'clock on Saturday the sea water had reached half-a-mile inland, and had surrounded a large fort in German hands.

Thunderbolts which were bombing a canal at Bremegen were attacked by a force of 80 ME109s and FW190s, outnumbering the P47s five to one. The Thunderbolts shot down six planes and lost four. Thunderbolts also bombed rail lines in the area of Aachen, Dusseldorf, Cologne, Trier and Coblenz. At least 82 locomotives were destroyed or disabled and 343 railroad cars knocked out.

DRYBOB AND DAWROS SHARE IN CURRAGH THRILL

THERE was a wonderfully exciting finish to the Irish Cambridgeshire at the Curragh on Saturday, when Drybob got up virtually in the last few strides to make a dead-heat with the penalised Dawros, after the latter, who had gone to the front about a furlong from home, had looked like retaining his advantage to the end.

In a "trouble free" race Dawros, in the centre of the course, was always prominent, after Hello Peter and Ekyad had shown up well in the earlier stages, as had Arts Ball and Astrologer (who faded out in the last furlong).

Wing, who was engaged for Drybob only a few hours before the race, when E. Newman could not make the weight, found an opening on the rails close home, and rode with characteristic vigour to divide the spoils, the dead-heaters being followed by the Abbot of Hainault, who did not come on the scene until the final phase.

It was a very consistent performance by Dawros, who had won his three previous races, and was carrying a 5lb. penalty.

Drybob is trained at Churchtown, Mallow, for Mr. N. E. Wilkinson by M. V. O'Brien, who bought the colt at Newmarket sales last December for 130 gns.

There was a big surprise in the valuable National Produce Stakes, in which Seraglio, after giving a lot of trouble at the post, was beaten into fourth place. The race was won fairly readily by Solid Pact, trained by Harry Beasley, who had gained his initial success as a trainer when the gelding won here last month.

O'Donnell (favourite) shoots to the front in the opening event at the Curragh on Saturday.

Y.M.C.A.'S STRONG HOCKEY XI

Y.M.C.A. ..... 4 Three Rock Rovers 1

Holders of the Senior Hockey League and Irish Cup, Y.M.C.A. are shaping like the outstanding side of this season also, and on Saturday, at Claremont, easily beat Three Rock Rovers 4-1. Moving much more smoothly in attack, the winners were quick to follow up shots also, and scored twice from rebounds. Rovers had a period of strong attack in the second half, but Worrall made several brilliant saves. R. Walker and Strong for Y.M.C.A., and Tucker, for Rovers, netted in the first half, and, Sanderson, from a penalty corner, and L. Walker got the second-half scores.

Dublin University 3 Pembroke Wanderers 1

Speed and fitness gave Dublin University a rather unexpected win by 3 goals to 1 over Pembroke Wanderers, at Londonbridge road. The forwards were very quick on the ball, and, in the end, bunied the opposing defence into errors. Their own defence was extremely steady. McGilligan scored an early goal, and, in the second half, Stronge added two more before V. Raby beat Stevenson in a penalty bully.

Railway U. ..... 2 Corinthians 1

At Park avenue, Railway Union nearly conceded a point to Corinthians in a match they should have won comfortably on the play, but a late goal by J. Tanham gave them a 2-1 win. Earlier in the second half J. Tanham and McCormac had scored such goals. R. J Byrne, the ex-international, reappeared for Railway at inside left.

Dalkey ..... 2 Portrane 0

Playing only four forwards Portrane never seemed likely to trouble Dalkey, who won 2-0 at Strradbrook. There was no score in the opening half, but shortly after the interval B. Huet scored and before the end Butler netted.

St. James's Gate .. 2 Avoca School .. 0

Avoca School were particularly unfortunate to lose 2-0 to St. James's Gate at Newtownpark avenue. There were times when it seemed inevitable that the visitors' defence would crack under pressure. There was no score in the opening half, which went in Avoca's favour. Shortly after the restart R. Shakespeare followed up shots from penalty corners to score two quick goals.

Rugby Football Now In Full Swing

THERE was a full senior Rugby programme on Saturday, and no surprises, if one can except the match at College Park, where a weakened Monkstown XV held Dublin University to a draw. It has, of course, to be taken into account that this was Trinity's first appearance this season. U.C.D. and Curragh Command were other teams to make a first appearance. U.C.D. were beaten by Blackrock College, and Curragh Command went under to Palmerston.

In the first inter-city match, Old Wesley had an easy win over Civil Service (Northern Ireland) in Belfast.

TRINITY SHOW PROMISE

Dublin University 3 pts. Monkstown 3 pts.

Defences prevailed at College Park, where Dublin University, making their first appearance to date, were held to a draw by a weakened Monkstown fifteen. The failure of their backs to put to account the marked superiority of their pack prevented Dublin University from opening with a win, but the team, on the whole, showed promise, and when they settle down they should be a force.

Early in the first half, following a scrum near the Monkstown line, Lindsay sent to A. Wilson, who crossed for Dublin University. Bradfield failed to convert. Late in the second period Monkstown livened up and L. Craig scored a try far out. M. Aherne was wide with his kick at goal.

THE QUINNS PROMINENT

Old Belvedere ..... 12 Wanderers 3

Old Belvedere, who have still to field their strongest team, maintained their winning way at Jones's road on Saturday when their best ex-capable Wanderers XV by 4 goals, a dropped goal and a try to a penalty goal. Wanderers, with Graves hooking to great effect, got more than their share of the ball, but the well-meant work of their three-quarters was often frustrated by the keen tackling and anticipation of the Belvedere backs. Kevin, Gerry and Brendan Quinn seldom failed to be played so effectively as a combination.

Brendan Quinn scored between the posts in the first half, and Gerry Morgan added the conversion. Kennedy charged down a punt ahead by Kevin Quinn for a try. In the second half Gerry Quinn dropped a goal, and Robertson scored a penalty goal for Wanderers.

CARRY A MATCH-WINNER

Old Wesley .. 22 pts. Civil Service .. 7 pts.

A brilliant first-half display by Old Wesley enabled them to beat Civil Service (N.I.) at Stormont, Belfast, on Saturday, by a goal, 2 dropped goals, a penalty goal, and 2 tries (22 points) to a dropped goal and a try (7 points). Carry was outstanding, and scored 13 points. First he dropped a goal and then converted a try, scored by Rutherford, and landed a penalty before half-time. In the second half Rutherford scored a try. Carry dropped another goal, and Sweetman got a try.

Civil Service had plenty of the ball in the second half, but the backs did not finish well against a defence which covered up soundly. Patterson dropped a goal for Civil Service, and Gallagher scored a try.

GOOD FORWARD WORK

Palmerston..... 8 Curragh Command 3

At Clonskeagh, Palmerston beat Curragh Command by a goal and a try to a penalty goal.

Palmerston backs were superior in attack, and their forwards better in the scrums. The Curragh side played with great spirit all through, their forwards being particularly good in the loose and in the line-out from touch. In O'Dwyer and Byrne they have two excellent halves. Palmerston were handicapped by the loss of L. Allen through injury early in the game.

There was no scoring in the first half. In the second half Curragh played up strongly, and Byrne landed a penalty goal.

Ellis crossed for Palmerston, Gill failing with the kick. Lowry then put Palmerston ahead with a try, after a grand run half the length of the field, and Flynn converted.

A LOSS TO CLONTARF

Lansdowne..... 3 Clontarf..... 0

At Lansdowne road, a try scored by J. Dawson close on time gave Lansdowne an unmerited win over Clontarf, who played a man short virtually throughout. J. O'Brien, one of the best of their forwards, having the misfortune to sustain a double fracture of the leg.

Lansdowne forwards played aimlessly, and with much less spirit than the opposing seven, and their backs, without K. O'Flanagan and N. Burke, made very poor use of innumerable chances. J. Cagney, when moved to outhalf, being the only one to get anywhere. A new Clontarf scrum-half, I. Williams, impressed.

WELL-MATCHED SIDES

Blackrock College 5 pts. U.C.D. 0

Blackrock College gained a somewhat lucky win over U.C.D. at Williamstown, by a goal to nil, after a keen and evenly contested game. There was practically nothing to choose between the sides in any department. Each pack of forwards enjoyed short spells of superiority in turn. College had slightly the better of matters in the first half, but Blackrock levelled up in the second, and when the 'Varsity eight tired in the last ten minutes D. Mayne crossed for a try, which B. Mooney goaled, to decide the issue.

A SCORELESS DRAW

Bective Rangers .. Nil St. Mary's Col. Nil

A lively but scoreless game Bective Rangers drew with St. Mary's College at Donnybrook on Saturday. The first half was evenly fought, and ended in a fine effort by D. Flanagan who narrowly missed a corner-flag try.

In the second half, however, Bective were superior, and their forwards, ably led by Stewart, Belfast, on the latter end it in the scrums, but St. Mary's defence was effective. On the St. Mary's team A. Norton and P. Meehan were outstanding.

KERRY WELL ON THE MARK

By PAT'O.

KERRY .... 5-4 CARLOW 2-2

Playing a comparatively young team, drawn freely from minor and junior talent, making eight changes on their all-Ireland side which was beaten by Roscommon in the recent final, Kerry again beat Carlow at Croke Park in a challenge game by 5 goals 4 points to 2 goals 2 points. When they met in the all-Ireland semi-final on August 26th, Kerry won by 3-3 to 0-10.

Kerry's young contingent—O'Donnell, the Lyne brothers, Burke, O'Connor and Dunne—played fast inclusive football in the second half. The loss of Farrell and Casey threw the Carlow machine out of gear. Whelan (captain), Byrne and Reilly were the only men to shine, and Kerry's five forwards played up to two brilliant goals. Carlow backs left many openings near the end.

Lyne brothers opened fast, and John pointed; Carlow pressed, and Morris placed O'Sullivan, who crashed in a good goal. Walsh's 50 was a fine drive, and passed over for a point. Joyce, Whelan and Byrne forced the pace for Carlow, who combined well, and Byrne crossed over to the right to take a pass and shoot Carlow's second goal.

Kerry came back with a flourish, and J. Lyne placed O'Donnell, who raced right through, and shot from 25 yards rising shot to the net. Teams were level when D. Lyne swung a point across. Kerry went into the lead when Dunne flashed in for an easy goal. Morris kicked a Carlow point before half-time.

O'Sullivan (Carlow) and O'Gorman (Kerry) exchanged points, Kerry had a brilliant session now. O'Gorman went right through for a goal, and D. Lyne was dead on the mark when he crossed to centre and shot to the net out of Quinlet's reach. When Kerry backs, led by Walsh, McCarthy and Teehan, broke up repeated Carlow attacks, the game was over. O'Gorman placed O'Donnell for another race through, and Kerry's fifth goal.

Dublin Results—Parish Gaels 3-6, Portrane 2-2; Air Corps—11, Civil Service 6-5; O'Connell's Schools 3-5, Westland Row 1-2; Belcamp 3-5, Dundalk C.B.S. 1-3.

PARTITION

Soon statesmen from all parts of the world will foregather to grapple with problems of unprecedented magnitude and intricacy. If these problems prove intractable, there can be little hope for abiding world peace: once again visions of economic stability and social security will be illusory, and once again international agreements will herald but another resort to the sword. These possibilities may be appalling to contemplate. Nevertheless, they cannot be escaped if patient statesmanship, backed by the willingness of communities to subordinate their selfish interests to the well-being of all, once more fails to discover the foundations, and to fabricate the structure, of a new and very different world order. What prospect is there, it is high time to inquire, that nations will be ready to make the sacrifices of political attitude without which there can be no hope of settled peace? At least four principal factors of diversity and conflict seem to enter into the whole great question. Deeply rooted traditions of race and blood in themselves present a sufficiently formidable complex of problems to tax the ingenuity and patience of statesmanship in the quest for new national frontiers. Not less will profound differences of religion and creed—even within the ambit of Christianity itself—have to be analysed and overcome. Then there will be the exigent demand of nations and communities for their place in the sun of economic well-being. Interwoven with—and, it is to be feared, dominating—these issues will be the clamour for military frontiers behind which nations, or groups of allied nations, may have in the last resort some reasonable hope of successful resistance to infringements of their recognised rights. Finally, and of immeasurable importance in its possible reactions on the whole international structure, questions of colour will call for prevision and imaginative treatment in a degree that well may prove beyond the level of practical statesmanship. That, as we see it, is but a bare outline of the kaleidoscope of social, economic and military problems that must be solved if a way of escape is to be found from untold fear, want and destruction.

Standing, to some extent, apart from the distractions of active warfare, the people of this small country are, or should be, able to take a relatively objective and dispassionate view of the troubles which press so urgently and intimately on the lives and prospects of the nations that now are embroiled in active hostilities. From that relatively detached standpoint they are, or ought to be, able to see international problems in something like their true perspective. Unfortunately, however, their outlook has been inhibited and distorted by racial and religious conflicts in the domestic sphere. To the majority the Northern Ireland border has become the centre and the circumference of the map of world politics. By comparison, Balkan boundaries—not to mention the future of Poland and other disrupted countries—are matters of remote and academic interest. Remedies that they would readily prescribe for political injustice to other communities are deemed to be impracticable as they might conceivably be applied to conditions at home. That attitude, as we see it, is not impossible to understand. To this newspaper, as to the majority of Irishmen at home and abroad, the border represents a needless barrier to national unity and progress, which ought to be surmounted by every practical means short of the exercise of force. We accept it only as a formidable evil for which no immediate or heroic remedy is likely soon to appear. Nevertheless, we are persuaded that the barrier may be broken down—or rather dissolved—by a series of practical steps. At the moment there is the imminent danger that new stones may be added to the wall of partition as the result of sharply differentiated "social insurance" policies and institutions. To foresee and guard against this menacing contingency certain steps are obvious, and ought to be taken without further delay. The first of these steps would be to call for the constitution of a joint conference, representing the Governments of Northern Ireland and the twenty-six counties, to consider the possibility of mutual accommodation in respect of employment, social and industrial insurance and kindred questions of common—but "non-political" — interest. Next would come the consideration of such common problems as rural electrification, arterial drainage, transport, and other aspects of post-war planning, none of which can be solved in the absence of adequate consultation and co-operation. What are the possible alternatives to some such approach? Can anybody seriously envisage international complications from which Ireland conceivably might snatch some advantages? If such hopes are entertained, we are persuaded that they are illusory. On the other hand, if Mr. de Valera should display the generous and statesmanlike spirit which marked his presidency of the League of Nations Assembly, and should direct it to the practical and pressing issues of this country, we are convinced that solutions soon would be found for many border problems that now seem to be hopelessly intractable.

1,800 Applicants

The long-appointed, but newly operative, Irish Tourist Board announces that 1,800 applicants are being interviewed in response to its recent advertisement for four inspectors. Presumably, the Board conceives—or conceived—an inspector as a man or woman who can bring an expert eye to bear upon such subjects as food, beds, recreational facilities and the other elements that constitute a hotel. Are there 1,800 people who answer this description in the whole of Ireland? Outside the ranks of the hotel-keepers themselves, are there eighteen? We hope that the Board will not permit itself to be rushed into a decision. Anybody, as it seems, who ever stayed in a hotel regards himself as an authority on the innumerable technicalities of the tourist traffic—just as anybody who has cast an occasional eye over a newspaper is apt to regard himself as qualified for the not entirely simple profession of journalism. It is more than high time that the problem of this country's tourist traffic was taken in hand, and we are glad that the Board, after its war-time hibernation, has brought itself into action; but there is no reason why undue haste, in respect either of decisions or of appointments, should prejudice its efficiency during the coming years. Here, as in many other countries, "tourism" has attained the proportions of a major industry, calling for highly expert supervision and planning. As in the case of the Transport Bill, we think that the Government has created a factory before it has determined what the factory proposes to make. Hotels have been registered, or have been refused the privilege of registration, before anything in the nature of a genuine plan for the tourist traffic has been designed. That is bad enough; but it is even worse to enlist the personnel of an organisation before one is certain about the organisation's terms of reference. If the Board is unwise enough to advertise in the vaguest terms for "inspectors," without taking the trouble to specify even a minimum set of qualifications, it is wasting the nation's money and the nation's time. We venture to suggest that it should discard the 1,800 applications and insert another advertisement.

FILM NOTES

BY OUR CINEMA CORRESPONDENT

BEFORE proceeding to the business of the week, it should, I think, be mentioned that "The Song of Bernadette" is to return to the Metropole in a few weeks. This time, however, Twentieth-Century Fox have munificently decided that the Dublin public may see it for as little as 3s. 6d. (balcony) and 2s. (stalls).

The Capitol have at last stopped tolling their bell and are now showing Leo McCarey's Going My Way, in which Bing Crosby, Barry Fitzgerald and Frank McHugh are all cast as Catholic priests. The theme of the film bears an almost uncanny resemblance to that of Paul Vincent Carroll's "The White Steed"; an elderly priest (Barry Fitzgerald) has a young curate foisted upon him, and finds that he cannot agree with his junior's modern methods. The main difference is that whereas Carroll's young curate was a fanatical bigot, Barry Fitzgerald's is none other than Bing Crosby, who, in spite of the unprecedented "dog-collar," sings and acts his way through the picture in an altogether convincing manner. Barry Fitzgerald's performance as the perverse old Father Fitzgibbon is one of the most perfect portrayals I have ever seen, and it is hard on Crosby that he has to suffer by comparison with so brilliant an actor. The film has its faults; in all conscience, it is too long, some of it is crude, and a great deal of it is quite aggressively sentimental, but it is tolerant, entertaining and admirably free of sectarian propaganda. In their heart of hearts the studios know that a "religious" film is a particularly risky gamble, but I think that this time Paramount have backed a winner.

The Falcon Out West (Royal)—In this, the latest of the Falcon's adventures, Tom Conway gives his customary polished, if uninspired, performance as the smooth private investigator who explains to the police how the murders were done. The plot is cleverly enough constructed, but has a bewildering overabundance of side issues and loose ends.

The Cowboy and the Senorita (Corinthian) stars Roy Rogers, who, in Gene Autry's absence, has become the most popular interpreter of Western drama. Dale Evans is the inevitably beautiful senorita.

The best of this week's "new" re-issues is Selznick's Made for Each Other, in which James Stewart and Carole Lombard give moving and intelligent performances in a realistic story of married life on an inadequate budget. Jo Swerling's script is full of convincing touches. In Old Chicago (Metropole) is too reminiscent of "San Francisco" to be more than mildly interesting, but it is instructive in that it demonstrates how easily a moderately good actor like Don Ameche can outact Tyrone Power. The Grafton are doing good business with Leslie Howard's Escape to Happiness, and the Green's re-issue, Smilin' Through (Jeanette MacDonald and Brian Aherne) combines sentiment with "sure-fire box-office pull." One is forced to conclude that sentiment is defined in Hollywood's dictionary as the quickest way of making large sums of money.

INSURANCE SCHEME FOR ACTORS

Dublin actors, actresses and variety artists soon may come under the benefits of the National Health and Unemployment Insurance schemes, writes an Irish Times reporter.

Some weeks ago the Writers', Actors', Artists' and Musicians' Association complained to the Department of Local Government and Public Health that no cards were being stamped in the case of hundreds of such employees. Immediately Government inspectors were sent to the theatres, and the Association expects that "very favourable results" will come soon.

A W.A.A.M.A. official said that only in the case of artists on tour had cards been stamped hitherto.

PART-TIME TEACHERS' PROTEST

"We do not desire to question the suitability of the new qualification, the Teastas Timthire, for the revival of the Irish language and culture," states the City of Dublin Vocational Part-Time Teachers' Association, "but this latter qualification is operating unfairly against some of our members who were part-time teachers of Irish." Having stated that some of these members have been teaching Irish for several years in technical schools, the statement points out that they now find themselves debarred from whole-time posts, as they have not the Teastas Timthire, and that they are in danger of losing their livelihood. A reasonable transition period is requested.

Cruiskeen Lawn

By Myles na gCopaleen

I WAS eighty-three and a half a few days ago, and I would like to take this opportunity of thanking all those who sent flowers, cards, messages, wreaths and telegraphic felicitation. These gestures—rare in these stern times—were much appreciated. Hoping that this will be accepted as it would be impossible to reply individually. Ballylongford papers please copy.

Neither Whale nor Seal

Scotland, is it? Don't talk, man. I took a bit of a holiday there over the week-end—thought I'd get in a little fishing before the fish got wise, stuffed a few things into a trunk and off with the wind in my tail altitude 56,000. Bit of trouble, in any event, over the North Sea—thought it wiser to land. Now read on for the love of heaven, and I take the extract from this very newspaper:

"Over twenty feet long, with enormous eyes and large feet, a sea monster, washed up by the Atlantic on the rocks at Machrihanish, near Campbeltown, is drawing large crowds to the little Scottish village. The beast—which is fur covered and resembles neither whale nor seal—lay yesterday like some inflated prehistoric animal on the rocks. Some people at first were terrified and refused to go near it . . . . . "

Hmmmph! The terror soon wore off when I managed to get a couple of tenners out of my pocket and wave them. Pre-historic animal indeed! A man can't make a little journey incognito apparently without being exposed to the jibes of karls and scullions! I'm damn sure I would have been left there to starve if it weren't for the coat. ('Fur-covered if you don't mind—wait till I tell my farrier (stet.) I am—forsooth!—on the rocks!

Frowns. Re-read extract, thinks of better idea, crosses out foregoing. Starts afresh).

I am not surprised. There then is Scottish resource and thrift for you. Let such a beast be washed up on the shores of this country and what will happen? Some lout will murder it and then try to squeeze a fiver out of the National Museum for the corpse. They do things differently in Scotland. They realise that petrol is scarce, that rubber is precious, and they have the animal "drawing large crowds to the little Scottish village." Granted that the harness was not easy to devise, that the shafts had to be of particular design—did that stop them? Not a bit of it. They instantly realised the tractive possibilities of those large feet. They did something.
